The Compiler to the Reader.

Early in life a strong liking took hold of my mind, for Family History. With investigations in this line any spare time was occupied : copious extracts made from books to which I had access, parish registers examined for births, marriages, and deaths ; and copies taken of inscriptions on the tomb-stones within reach.

Coming to Canada when only 19 years old, I found little if any opportunity, for pursuing such studies. I might now and then look over extracts made in these early days, and so keep the liking from dying out entirely ;—but, till the opportunity arose, of reproducing by printed copy, information I had gathered, the thought of preparing such a ‘record’ as this, never seriously presented itself. When it did and nothing appeared to prevent the attempt being made, it became necessary to determine what form would be likely to combine most readily, simplicity of arrangement with convenience in tracing relationships.

Explanatory.

An Alphabetical arrangement, such as a Directory or Dictionary presents, seemed to be most suitable—accompanied by tabular lists fitted to give a particular view of one or another branch or offshoot : the blood-relations, as they are called, not occupying the whole ‘record’, to the exclusion of such as were connections of the family, simply by marrying sons, being married to daughters, or in some such way. The plan likewise contemplated the introduction, when it could be got, of the parents and grandparents of such connections.

On this plan the EPITOME now completed has been prepared ; and the same general plan will be observed in the larger ‘record’, which will be proceeded with, as speedily as possible : the chief difference between the two lying in the opportunity afforded by the latter for particulars of interest about one or another, which the nature of this small work could not admit of ; and for noticing by means of an Appendix, individuals or families nearly related to some in the ‘record’ and yet excluded by the necessary limitation of the plan.

Where a point arose involving doubt, this has been indicated by an interrogation mark : these marks are few however, and the nature of the doubt will be ex—plained in the fuller record. On minor discrepancies, owing to communications reaching me from different sources on one point, I had to use my own judgment.

I have not been able to procure information, about the descendants of Dr George French, about those of Provost David Steuart & Anne Fordyce—or those of Alex. Dingwall & Janet Abercrombie's daughters.

I regret that, except in a fragmentary manner, the same is the case with the daughters of John Dingwall and Mary Lumsden. Information on these points, if supplied in time, may appear in the larger 'record'.

In this EPITOME, the names of the parents of those who have a place in it, are given within brackets : in some cases the name only of one was known or given.

Friends very kindly gave what information was in their power ; some have taken a very great amount of trouble, and have my sincere and hearty thanks.

In making use of Dr Hew Scott's valuable work—'Fasti Ecclesiæ Scotticanae', I trust that no error has crept into this record, as I have reason to believe that work is not wholly free from inaccuracies. If any are detected, informing me will be esteemed a favor.

Additional Note.

A simple professional remark made many years since, in a work by Ralph Bigland Esq. Somerset Herald,

"Observations on Marriages, Baptisms, and Burials; as preserved in the Parochial Registers, A.D. 1764:"

was the means of inducing me, to note down various scraps of information, which have been found useful in the preparation of this 'Record.' The remark itself, remains as fresh in my memory after half a century—as the day on which I first came across it. It is this :--

"It is of importance to every family,--not excepting the meanest, to pay some regard to their pedigrees: and consequently, every circumstance, whether of a public or private nature,--which tends to preserve or elucidate Genealogical History, should be attended to, with the most religious care."

Meanness (of origin) according to the acceptation of the term in the above extract,—is well known to be quite compatible with the highest species of nobility, that of character. This little 'record' of relatives and connexions,—many of them belonging to other days, contains the names of not a few, who might have been reckoned mean in respect of social standing, but who were truly the honorable of the earth :—descent from whom is regarded with justifiable pride by those who rightly estimate such distinctions.

"Honor and Shame, from no condition rise; Act well your part, there all the honor lies."

The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the car was a warm blanket of sunlight. The air smelled like fresh bread and the ground beneath my feet was soft and yielding. I took a deep breath and felt a sense of peace that I hadn't felt in a long time.
The world around me seemed to be waiting for me, and I knew that this was my chance to start over.
I looked up at the sky and saw a few clouds drifting lazily across the blue. The sun was shining brightly, and the birds were singing cheerfully. It was a beautiful day, and I knew that I was exactly where I needed to be.

Explanatory: (Additional.)

- 1 In the foregoing Tables—successive generations are indicated by an intervening space.
 - 2 When several names occur in one line—(enclosed by brackets or not,) all are to be understood as belonging to the generation of the first named.
 - 3 In the Epitome, the letter b may stand for born—or baptized: which, not always certainly known : m of course for married; d for died: s.p. without issue ; s.m.p. without male issue ; s.s.p. without surviving issue.
 - 4 In the Epitome, (as stated elsewhere :) the names of the parents of the subject of notice, are placed within brackets. The figure preceding the parents' names, refers to the subject:—for instance, should the subject be of the male sex, his place among the sons is seen by the figure within the brackets ;—if a female, her place among the daughters.)
 - 5 In accordance with the plan followed in a work of a similar character, by the late Mr Al. Johnston W.S. the date of birth is not given, where those referred to, are in life.
